2. Context area

Name of creators: Ruth Lane Poole, 1886-1974.

Biographical note:

Ruth Lane Poole (1886-1974), daughter of Henrietta and Frederick Pollexfen became a ward of her cousin Susan Mary Yeats (1866-1948) in 1900 following the separation of her parents. When the Yeats sisters moved from London to Dublin to co-found the Dun Emer industries with Evelyn Gleeson, Ruth became an apprentice with Susan Mary Yeats, preparing decorative embroidery designs first at Dun Emer and later at Cuala. Ruth met Charles Lane Poole in Dublin, in 1910 Charles proposed by letter from the Transvaal in southern Africa and Ruth accepted. William Butler Yeats gave Ruth away when she and Charles were married in Dublin in July 1911. After their wedding Ruth stayed in Ireland while Charles worked in Sierra Leone for five years. In 1913 their first daughter, Charlotte, was born in England.

The Lane Poole's first family home was in Western Australia, where they lived in the Perth suburb of Cottesloe from 1916 until 1922, while Charles was the state's Conservator of Forests. Their second daughter, Mary, was born there in 1918. When Charles resigned the Western Australia post in 1922, Ruth returned to Ireland with Charlotte and Mary. A third daughter, Phyllis, was born there in 1923. Ruth and the girls lived in Ireland for the next three years while Charles worked first in Papua and then in New Guinea. Ruth brought their three daughters back to Australia in 1925, when Charles was appointed Commonwealth Forestry Adviser.

In September 1925, Ruth Lane Poole designed a room featuring craftwork in Australian timber and wool in Melbourne Town Hall and began contributing articles on interior decoration to the Australian Home Builder. In the following years she wrote regularly on interior design for magazines and newspapers. In 1926 Ruth was commissioned to design and furnish the interiors of the residences of the Prime Minister and Governor General in Canberra.

In her 17 years in Canberra Ruth Lane Poole was prominent in developing the social and cultural life of the new national capital. The Lane Pooles were keen bushwalkers and pioneers of Canberra's skiing, and Charles Lane Poole was the founding president of the Alpine Club. Ruth organised tennis parties and balls for the students at the Australian Forestry School, creating celebrated decorative schemes for the annual balls. After her daughter Mary went to England in the late 1930s, she ran Mary's flower shop in Manuka until 1943. Ruth left Westridge House when Charles retired in 1945 and the couple moved to the Sydney suburb of Manly. In 1974 Ruth Lane Poole died aged 89, four years after the death of her husband.
