‘Rethinking the world’: Bauhaus celebrates 100 years

Thursday 27 June
This year marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Bauhaus, an art and design school in Germany, whose innovative ideas remain highly influential to this day. To celebrate this occasion the National Gallery of Ireland is borrowing a set of four Bauhaus print portfolios from the Staatsgalerie Stuttgart. This important series, New European Graphics, featuring 52 prints by 45 celebrated avant-garde artists from across Germany, Italy and Russia, will be explored. The cultural revolution the school instigated in art education, together with its goal to reshape modern life through art and design, morphed the Bauhaus into a global phenomenon.

In advance of the exhibition opening to the general public, join Curator Niamh MacNally for this talk, which will give insights into the fascinating history of the Bauhaus, those who were involved, and its continuing legacy.

Curator’s Lecture — Hear it here first

Joaquín Sorolla: Spanish Master of Light

Ca’Pesaro Venice, Sewing the Sail (Cucendo la vela), 1896

Thursday 11 July

This lecture will explore the life and career of Spanish painter Joaquín Sorolla. Born in Valencia in 1863, Sorolla gained international acclaim in the final years of the nineteenth century for large-scale works tackling social subjects. However, the character and atmosphere of the Valencian seaside remained in the artist's blood, and it was his sun-drenched depictions of the life, leisure, landscapes and traditions of Spain which sealed his lasting fame.

Sorolla reportedly “hated darkness.” The artist's words are echoed in his luminous canvases, iridescent and alive with sunlight. So famed were his abilities in capturing the effects of the sun, that French Impressionist painter Claude Monet described him as “the Master of Light”.

In advance of the exhibition opening to the general public, join the Gallery’s Curator of Italian and Spanish Art, Dr. Aoife Brady, for this talk.

Leonardo and the artists of his time

Saturday 13 July
This year is the 500th anniversary of the death of Renaissance genius Leonardo da Vinci and enthusiasts from all over the world are marking the occasion with various exhibitions and events. What is so compelling about his work? Why are his designs and inventions so current in the 21st century? Enjoy a talk delivered by Siobhan Campbell in the Lavery Room. Following this we will have light afternoon tea in the Members’ room in No.5. After our refreshments we will enjoy a guided tour of some artworks in the Gallery’s collection, given by Bernadette Farrell, exploring connections between Leonardo and artists who we have represented here in the National Gallery of Ireland and who were working during the High Renaissance period and influencing each other. Contemporaries working in Florence at the time include Perugino, Granacci and Filippino Lippi.

Day Trip
Galway: an explorers’ expedition

Thursday 22 August
Join us on a day trip to Galway with art historian Jessica Fahy. Starting with tea/coffee and scones in Loughrea, we will then visit the Cathedral museum for a guided tour. After the museum we will visit St. Brendan’s Cathedral for a guided tour. The Cathedral has strong ties to the Celtic Revival with an exceptional collection of stained glass, including works by Evie Hone, Sarah Purser and Michael Healy. Following these two tours, we will travel on to Galway city for a delicious meal in Le Petit Pois. Before returning to Dublin, we will have a chance to learn more about Galway and its connections to explorers such as St. Brendan and Christopher Columbus as well as landscape artist William Evans of Eton.

Here’s a note from our Curator Niamh McNally

To celebrate the centennial of the Bauhaus, the National Gallery of Ireland is exhibiting a series of Bauhaus print portfolios on generous loan from the Staatsgalerie Stuttgart. This set of four portfolios, New European Graphics, were printed at the Bauhaus between 1922 and 1924. This ambitious publishing venture constituted an international survey of avant-garde printmaking in Germany during the post-First World War period. Bauhaus masters, together with a diverse group of renowned painters involved in Abstraction, Futurism and Expressionism, donated original prints to the project. According to Gropius each portfolio ‘will demonstrate how the artistic generation of our time shares the ideas of the Bauhaus...’ In a show of solidarity, many significant European artists rallied around the Bauhaus banner with this project.

This exhibition incorporates a wide range of well-known artists including Beckmann, Feininger, Grosz, Kandinsky, Kirchner, Klee, Marc and Pechstein. Thanks to the Friends of the National Gallery of Ireland for their kind support of this exhibition.
